A Description of the Hospital and its Methods of Operation—Found Much to Commend.

A BLESSING TO THE COMMUNITY

When we glance backward to the time when it was necessary to take poor suffering patients hundreds of miles to a city hospital for the necessary operation, or treatment which it was impossible to give at home, it is with a sense of the deepest gratification that we realize that we have right here in our midst, a hospital of which we can speak with pride, fully equipped, and which can compare favorably with anything of the kind anywhere in Pennsylvania. Scarcely ten months have passed by, since the hospital being an assured fact, the means of furnishing the building, and the general equipment of the same was being discussed. Our people responded promptly to the call for help and it will be remembered that many ways were resorted to, to obtain funds for this worthy cause.

Our ladies solicited, merchants and citizens donated liberally. "The Daughters of the Revolution" presented the Thespians at the opera house which proved such a grand success, then our Home minstrels, sang their most fetching songs at their entertainment, which was also well patronized. The W. C. T. U. added their help, and the High School scholars also, so that the good work went on, but just what the general result has been, now that the institution is in good working order, we believe is unknown to the majority of our readers and thinking that a description of the building would prove of interest to many, the REPUBLICAN secured a representative for this paper, who visited the hospital recently and secured the following account.

Thursday was a busy day, visitors were many, and the nurses were gliding about looking very professional in their white aprons and caps. On entering the lower hall, Miss Lippiatte, who holds the position of "Head Nurse," very courteously but hurriedly, essayed to show us through the lower floor. Opening a door at the right we were allowed to enter the ladies ward. This is a cheerful room containing five beds spotlessly white, two of which were occupied, one by a Miss Markle and the other a Mrs. Bradley. Mrs. Gummo the third patient, was able to sit up. One or two friends were present fanning or doing some other little act of kindness for the sick ones. This room our informant said, contained on an average from nine to eleven patients every week.

On the opposite side of the hall, we entered the mens ward this contained four beds, which were unoccupied at the time, but there were two inmates for the room who were convalescent. Our attention was called to the electric bells in the hall way. These communicate with every room in the house, so that all the patient has to do is to touch the button to summon a nurse at any time. Miss Lippiatte informed us that over one hundred patients had been admitted to the hospital during the brief time it has been in operation, which we believe only dates back to last June.

At the rear of the hall is located a bath room for the use of the ward patients. We had just finished looking at this, when a poor unfortunate man badly mangled and groaning with pain was taken in on a stretcher to the mens ward. He had been injured at his work in the crusher at Scotia. Dr. Harris had everything in readiness and with the assistance of the nurses immediately gave him the required attention. Passing from the hall, we entered the business office. This is so near like other offices as to need no description. Passing on we entered the Dining Room, this is a good sized room bright and cheerful, with windows on either side. The large dining table standing in the centre of the room looked dainty and attractive covered with its white cloth. Outside the building everything looked clean and neat, kept so perhaps by the Steward, Mr. John Dunkle. We noticed quite a large number of grape vines hanging full of delicious looking purple grapes.

About the premises, are many apple trees also some pear and peach trees, and a number of large cherry trees. This fruit will lend itself very nicely to the requirements of the hospital. The second story contains rooms for private patients; at the end of the hall is a finely appointed bath room for the use of these patients and the nurses. Much has been said about the room furnished by the Daughters of the Revolution also that of the W. C. T. U. Some difference of opinion has been expressed in regard to the beauty of each, but as the patient who occupied the W. C. T. U. room (Mrs. Spicer,) was too ill to be disturbed we cannot give our opinion. It is described as furnished in delicate shade of green, which is a very refreshing color for the eyes of the sick.

As we entered the room of the "Daughters" we were at once impressed by its dainty beauty. At the windows were sash curtains of white dotted swiss, while long white curtains were draped over these. The furniture is of white, also the walls and wood work. There is a large stuffed easy chair standing in the corner near the head of the bed, the bed itself is in white iron with brass trimmings. There is a touch of color in the room, noticeable every here and there. It is of a delightful shade of blue, showing itself in the toilet set, in the beautiful screen which stands between the door and bed, and on the Insignia of the D. A. R.'s which hangs upon the wall. The dishes in the little closet are of blue and white. Sitting upon the chifonier in a silver tray was an exquisite little silver tea set. The floor is covered with linoleum in little checks of blue and white, while one or two handsome rugs, give a feeling of warmth and elegance to the room. All the articles in this room were furnished by the daughters. The room was occupied by Mrs. Ed. Cowdick who had been there for about three weeks recovering from an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Cowdick informed us that she was so hungry that she could eat a boiler full of noodle soup if she could get it, as she was nearly starved, but her laughing eyes, and contented look rather belied her assertion, although no doubt she had been of necessity very hungry at one time.

The next and perhaps most important room visited was the operating room. This is a large square room, well lighted from a skylight over head and from a large square window built out at one side. A stranger unused to the implements of science seems almost appalled at the sight presented in the room. The large operating table of white stone, stands in the centre of the room, while many other stands and tables of the same material, also of plain, heavy glass are scattered about. Conspicuous among other articles is a large sterilizer this might be taken by some for a telescope to gaze up through the skylight to the stars, but this is not its purpose, some playfully call it the incubator, but its purpose is to sterilize the instruments. Across one corner of the room is a large glass cabinet for holding the smaller instruments, this cabinet and contents were informed was purchased by the money raised by the home Minstrels, while the money raised by the High School scholars, went to purchase some of the other articles contained in this room. The upper part of the building contains the sleeping apartments of the nurses, Miss Clark and Miss Barkel, are the names of two of the nurses whom we met. We heard Miss Barkel spoken of very highly by some of the patients.

Miss Clark, when asked by a visitor if she really liked her profession, replied, "Oh, yes indeed, I would not give it up for anything unless, she added, I should marry and then I don't know but what I should want to go back to it again." The building is heated by steam and lighted by electric light. The College students should come in for their share of praise, as they furnished one of the rooms for private patients but this we did not enter. In many of the rooms were bouquets of flowers sent in by kind friends. Everything seems to be conducted on business like principles, while at the same time there is a sense of rest and comfort such as could not be had in many of the homes represented there. Donations are coming in to this institution every day thus showing how highly our people as well as the people throughout the county appreciate our hospital.

—Mrs. Edward Cowdick has so far recovered from her recent attack of appendicitis, that Thursday she was removed from the hospital to the home, of her sister-in-law Mrs. Hamilton Otto of East Lamb street.

GRIM REAPER DEATH.

Caused Sad Parting in Many of Our Homes.

CAPT. HENRY STEVENS CALLED

Was a Veteran of Two Wars—Small Pox Causes Death of a Young Wife at State College—Her Name Was Mrs. Martha Knoff.

OTHER DEATHS IN THE COUNTY

[By request we publish the following complete obituary of Capt. Henry Stevens written by a friend.]

Capt. Henry Stevens breathed his last at his home at Center Line on the evening of the 30th of Sept. after an illness of several weeks with a complication of troubles. In fact he had never been altogether well since his return from Mexico where disease got into his system that broke down his strong constitution.

Deceased was born near where he spent his whole life, Half Moon Valley, near Center Line March 1st 1826. He was a son of the late Vincent Stevens one of the pioneer settlers of that valley. He assisted his father on the farm in summer and attended school in winter. When the war with Mexico came on he enlisted in Co. A, Capt. Smith's Company 8th U. S. Regulars, and served with distinction until the close, Dec. 23rd 1848. He married Susanah Beck, the result of this union was eleven children one died in infancy. Eight sons and two daughters mourn the death of a good father. They are Blair Stevens and Frank of Cameron, Pa.; Lloyd of McCartney, Pa.; Charles of Ansonville, Pa.; Abednego of Marietta, Ohio; Vincent of Julian; George of Port Matilda; Mrs. Martha Blake of Lovellville; Mrs. Emory Sterbank and Charles C. at home. Two sisters survive Mrs. Elizabeth Meyers and Miss Tina Stevens both of Tyrone. December 28th 1898 Mr. Stevens and wife celebrated their Golden Wedding. Mrs. Stevens died the following October the 2nd, since then he made his home with his son James who farms the old farm that bears the name so many years and where everybody received a cordial welcome. As the Captain was known as one of the successful farmers and business men in that valley, and was always identified with every public movement always assumed his share of the responsibility as a most enterprising citizen. He had a keen sense of humor and a most remarkable memory, well read in church, state and national affairs, and was a most hospitable man in his home, where no one was ever turned empty handed away. When the war clouds hovered over our country and the smoke of Fort Sumpter had scarcely cleared away he raised a company of 100 men uniformed and equipped known as the Scotch guard of which he was Captain. Early in May 61, he offered their service to the President but was not accepted until August when his company was attached to the 45th P. V. Regt. Col. Thos. Welch commander, also a Mexican Soldier. Capt. Stevens company was assigned as the color company E. of the Regt. and held this honorable position until the close of the war, on account of ill health he resigned and came home and followed farming for the balance of his life and with industry, economy and frugality acquired considerable wealth.

He was an earnest member of the Lutheran church at Center Line in which he was devout in every duty so earnest and upright that to his children he left a heritage incomparably rich. He was a member of Stormstown G. A. R. Post. The funeral took place from his residence on Friday the 2nd at 10 o'clock a. m. Six of his old comrades, members of Co E 45th Regt. of P. V., carried their old commander to his last resting place and lowered him forever out of sight beneath the clouds of the Valley in the Center Line cemetery, where a large concourse of people gathered to shed a parting tear over the tomb of the old soldier of two wars.

His ministerial friend Rev. Stahr of Warriorsmark had charge of the services and paid a glowing tribute to the old patriarch, friend, neighbor and comrade. The pall bearers were: George W. Loner, J. G. Heberling, Wm. Ellenberger, Henry Barto, Henry Clay Miller, Capt. W. H. Fry.

MRS. MARTHA KNOFF.
Mrs. Martha Knoff, wife of Samuel Knoff, of State College, died Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock at what is known as the pest house located about two miles from State College.

Very sad indeed, are the circumstances surrounding the death of this young wife and mother. It seems that about two weeks ago she was called to Oak Hall to nurse a sister's child who was visiting there from Pittsburg and who was supposed to be suffering from chicken pox. On her return to State College about a week ago she was taken ill and Dr. Glenn summoned. He at once diagnosed her case as small pox and she was removed to the pest house where she expired Tuesday morning.

It is since learned that the two children of her sister at Oak Hall had small pox instead of chicken pox.

Two other cases of small pox have developed at Oak Hall, a brother of Mrs. Knoff and an elderly lady, a Mrs. Bible who lived neighbor to the Knoffs.

The schools at Oak Hall have been closed and every precaution is being taken to stop the spread of the disease. It is said to be in a mild form and an epidemic of the dread disease is not feared.

Mrs. Knoff, the deceased, was born at Oak Hall and is about thirty years old. Her maiden name was Patterson. She was a member of the Reformed church and is survived by her husband, Samuel Knoff and one son Charles.

The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon. Interment at Pine Hall cemetery.

MRS. MINNIE CORL.

Minnie, wife of Joseph Corl, died at her home at State College Sunday morning at 9 o'clock of Typhoid fever after an extended illness.

Deceased was born at Lauverton and was about thirty years of age. Her maiden name was Evey and she was the daughter of Uriah E-ey. She was a member of the Evangelical church at Lemont and was a conscientious christian lady. Surviving her are her husband and two small children, a boy and a girl. She is also survived by her parents and several brothers and sisters.

The funeral took place from the home Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment in Pine Hall cemetery.

STABBING AFFRAY.

At Phillipsburg Tuesday Evening—John Erb Stabs Thomas Cole.

As the result of an old grudge between two men, Thomas Cole, young man 23 years of age lies in the Cottage Hospital at Phillipsburg in a precarious condition as a result of several pen knife wounds inflicted by John Erb.

Both men are residents of Phillipsburg, this county, where the affray took place Tuesday evening about 8 o'clock. The full particulars of the affair seem to be shrouded in mystery and it is hard to get the correct facts. It seems there has been bad blood between the two men for some time and Tuesday evening they met in front of the American Hotel and started to renew the quarrel with the result that Cole fell to the pavement bleeding from many wounds. He was conveyed to the hospital where his condition was found very serious.

No arrests have as yet been made although Erb has offered to give himself up and in fact telephoned himself for District Attorney Spangler to come out and investigate the case.

Cole is a married man and the son of Henry Cole, of Phillipsburg. Erb is also married and is in the restaurant business.

The friends of Erb blame Cole for trouble and vice versa Cole's friends blame Erb. The true cause of the trouble is not yet learned.

Academy Lost at Lock Haven.

The Academy team went to Lock Haven Saturday and played a very plucky game against a team that was not only much heavier but used every pound to good advantage. The field was so wet and slippery that the speed and teamwork which won against Houtzdale a week ago were nullified by the superior weight of the Normal team. The only score of the game was made for the Normal boys in the last half minute of the first half by a fake play around the end from the fifty-yard line. In the second half the Academy clearly outplayed the Normals but were unable to score.

Two twenty minute halves were played and the final score stood 5-0 against the home team. The line up was practically the same as in the Houtzdale game.

GREAT CONVENTION.

It Convened Monday in the Academy of Music, Philadelphia.

MANY DELEGATES PRESENT

Held Under the Auspices of the Open Door Emergency Commission of the Missionary Society.

OF METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

PHILADELPHIA, October 14.—The great missionary convention of the Methodist Episcopal church at which delegates are present from all of New England and the middle Atlantic states was formally opened Tuesday at the Academy of Music in this city in the presence of an audience that taxed the capacity of the building. Distinguished clergy and laymen of the church from all parts of the country are present and will take an active part in the convention, which will remain in session till Thursday. The gathering is held under the auspices of the open door emergency commission of the Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, which commission was organized by the board of bishops and was organized primarily to devise ways and means for promoting a larger missionary interest and enthusiasm among the 3,000,000 members of that denomination. Of the commission Bishop Edward G. Andrews, of New York, is chairman, but Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, of this city, will preside at all the sessions of the convention. The following conferences are represented at the meeting:

Maine, East Maine, New England, New England Southern, New Hampshire, Northern New York, Troy, Central New York Genesee, New York East, New York Newark, New Jersey, Philadelphia, Wyoming, Central Pennsylvania, Erie, Pittsburg, Wilmington, Delaware, Baltimore, Washington, East German, Eastern Swedish, Virginia and West Virginia.

One of the features of the convention is the mission exhibit in the foyer of the academy, which includes maps and pamphlets explaining the evangelizing done by Methodists in Dead Affair.

A distressing fatality occurred at McDonalds about thirty miles west of Pittsburg on the 29th of September 1903, in which William Miles Irwin lost his life by being struck by a fast line, he getting off of a caboose of a freight train and stepping on the main track was instantly killed. His remains were brought to his Grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Irwin near Unionville, on the 1st of October where funeral services were held at 2 o'clock on the following day. Interment at Sovers burying ground. A large concourse of friends and relatives gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to all that was mortal. The services were conducted by Rev. G. A. Sparks, pastor of the U. S. Church at Ronville. The unfortunate young man was the second son of Lanning and Emma Irwin, his mother having preceded him to the great beyond thirteen years ago.

The subject of the sketch was a fine young man. He was in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad company and was highly esteemed by the company. He had just reached manhood as he was 21 yrs and 24-day old. The departed one leaves a father, step-mother, two brothers, one sister, three half-sisters, grand-father, grand-mother and many other friends and relatives. The grief stricken friends have the sympathy of the community. We hope their loss is his gain.

Ten Small Pox Patients in One Family.

The Lewis family, of Centralia, a little town near Shamokin, is surely a sadly afflicted one as the entire household is now suffering from smallpox, the latest victims being their mother, father and grandmother, who have developed the disease. With these last three it makes ten in all nine of whom contracted the disease from a son and brother, who caught it in Philadelphia.

UNCLAIMED LETTER LIST.

The following letters remain in the Bellefonte Post Office uncalled for Oct. 14th, 1903:

When called for please say advertised. W. W. MONTGOMERY, P. M.

MISS MARY EMERSON.

In His Majesty and the Maid at German's Friday Night.

German's pretty play house was well filled Friday evening with a large and intelligent audience gathered there to witness the talented young emotional actress, Mary Emerson produce the new romantic play by Joseph Le Brandt entitled "His Majesty and the Maid."

Miss Emerson is a new star in the theatrical firmament and Friday night she twinkled for the first time before a Bellefonte audience. She came here a stranger but the audience fell in love with her at first sight and she established herself as a prime favorite with our theatre goers. She scored a decided hit by her clever work as "Alicia" the maid and was compelled to respond to several curtain calls. The audience went into ecstasies over her. But then she is bewitchingly pretty, lithe-limbed and graceful with ability to act.

In the second act where she is at the palace, and where she learns that she is the daughter of the King, she was womanly and appealing and at the climax of this act, where she learns of the meeting place of the men who are conspiring against the King, she sustained the situation so well that there were repeated curtain calls.

Her third act, where, disguised as a boy, she comes to the meeting place of the conspirators, was cleverly conceived with its alternate moments of comedy and pathos and emotional work, and when at the end she fights a duel with rapiers with the man she loves and wins it, she showed that she knew how to handle a sword. The climax was a stirring one.

The last act, the fourth, brought an interesting story to a close. What seemed to be the only defect in Miss Emerson's work was her anxiety to please.

Her costumes were elaborate and she wore them with becoming grace. The scenery and appointments with commensurate with the plot of the piece.

Of the supporting company Max Anderson as Otto the young Lieutenant in love with "Alicia" was interesting in his role. John J. Crowley as "Count Norberg" the chief conspirator was strong in their part. Nathan Aronson as the King deserves special mention and the rest of the support was above the average.

Gilbert Beaver Injured.

The many friends in Bellefonte of Gilbert A. Beaver were sorely grieved Sunday when the news became public of an accident which befell him Saturday afternoon in New York City.

Mr. Beaver is engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in New York City and makes his home in that metropolis. Saturday afternoon while riding his bicycle on one of the busy thoroughfares of the city he attempted to pass between a trolley car and a wagon. The space however, proved to narrow and he was thrown first against the trolley car and then to the ground sustaining serious injuries. He was removed to his home and his parents Gen. and Mrs. James A. Beaver were telegraphed for, they leaving at once for his bedside.

At first it was reported that his skull was fractured but his brother Thomas Beaver informed the writer that such was not the case and that he is much improved.

Death of Mrs. Hannah Shaffer.

Mrs. Hannah Shaffer, wife of Jonathan Shaffer, died at her home, in Lock Haven Friday evening at 5:15 o'clock, after an illness of two years duration with dropsy and heart trouble. Deceased was aged 71 years. She had resided in Lock Haven for the past 29 years and was a member of the Evangelical church. She is survived by her husband, three sisters—Mrs. Reish, of Union county, Mrs. Samuel Homan and Mrs. Isaac Smith, of Hecla, and two brothers—Joseph Kling, of Jacksonsville, and Isaac Kling, of Clintonale. The following children by a former husband also survive—Mrs. W. E. Bower, Lock Haven; Mrs. Milton Royer, Millinburg; Mrs. Frank Galbraith, of Bellefonte, William Karstetter, Rote, and Alfred Karstetter, Williamsport. Funeral services were conducted at the home Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock by Rev. J. W. Thompson, of Lewisburg. Interment in Mt. Bethel, cemetery, near Clintonale.

Suicide of Young Man.

Charles Spaid, of New Berlin, committed suicide last week without any special reason. He was about twenty-five years old. Several days previous to the time he committed the deed, the young man suffered from an aberration of the mind, and was melancholy and depressed.

NEW CHICAGO IN ALASKA

Founding of a Town on Coast of Resurrection Bay.

MANY BUILDING SITES SOLD.

Pioneers From the Western Metropolis Are Erecting Seward, Which Is to Be a Railroad Center of the Far North—Municipal Officials Elected—Country Abounds in Minerals and Game.

While Chicago was honoring the memory of the men who laid its foundations another band of pioneers, bred in Chicago and aided by Chicago capital, was forging its way through the forests of Alaska to found a new Chicago there, according to information received in Chicago recently from A. W. Swanitz, in charge of the party of pioneers, says the Chicago Tribune.

The first clearings for the new city to be erected by Chicago enterprise were made on Aug. 15, when a score of Chicagoans disembarked from the steamship Santa Anna, anchored in Resurrection bay. A sign bearing the name "Seward," by which Chicago's newest suburb will be known, was nailed to the biggest tree in the forest beside the bay, and the work of laying out the little city and marking the course of the Alaska Central railway was begun immediately.

The railway, which is to be built by the pioneers from Chicago, will extend from the south coast to the Tanana and Yukon rivers, a distance of 400 miles, penetrating to the center of the district.

A few hours after the Chicagoans had unloaded their tools, tents and supplies on the beach the forests were echoing the ring of their axes. Chicago engineers soon had their transit and chain out, and before nightfall many trees had been felled. At night a lot of tired men had their first meal on the spot where they expect to see the rise of the Chicago of Alaska.

A second steamer arrived in the bay and dropped anchor. More people came to swell the population of Seward. They had heard of the building of the Alaska Central railway and came in search of work. Before another sun had set the original band of twenty persons had been increased by seventy-five persons from Valdez and Sitka, from Seattle and Tacoma. The town was growing with the rapidity of its mother city.

A temporary judge and marshal, both Chicagoans, were elected at noon on the third day, and thus the community was established under the unwritten law, but recognized by the United States supreme court, which approves the acts of judges elected after this manner. Since then several hundred building sites have been sold. The highest price paid for a single lot was $1,000.

A sawmill is in operation. Piles for a wharf are being driven. A restaurant, a grocery, a meat market and other shops have been established, and horses have been brought into the city from distant points and sold to the settlers. The town's population on Sept. 1 was 200. The people were planting civilization where a few weeks ago the brown bear roamed undisturbed.

The settlers are living on the same kind of food that Lieutenant Swearingen and John Kinzie thrived on at Fort Dearborn in 1803, bear and venison meat.

The residents say nearly every mile of the surveyed line of the Alaska Central railway reveals new resources. Bear creek, six miles out, and Swan river, fifteen miles from the bay, give fair returns in placer mining. Ten miles farther north lies Kenai lake, nestled in the forest, with several rich placers. Trail creek and the entire valley of the Sushitna is said to be rich in pay dirt, hydraulic and quartz ledge opportunities.

When the Sushitna valley, 110 miles from Resurrection bay, is once reached it is claimed that there is a veritable storehouse of native minerals—not only gold, but copper, coal and iron. Government geologists are claimed to have discovered tin, lead and platinum in the rich valley.

The country abounds in game and fish. The creeks are full of salmon and speckled and silver trout.

The woods and small barren places are thick with bear, deer and moose, grouse, wild geese and ducks, while herds of wild sheep are pasturing on the upper mountain slopes. Vegetation is rapid. The grasses in the valley, red-top prevailing, grow thick and tall, and the ground can easily be cultivated, the Chicagoans say.

"Some day," say the pioneers, "Seward will be the biggest city along the coast, and Chicago can point with pride to the fruits of its push and energy."

Co-operation Among Patrons.

It seems strange, says the Watertown Times, that more patrons do not take advantage of their organization to purchase feed and other supplies on a cash basis and thus save a large margin from prices paid to retailers under the credit system. Reputable dealers are glad to make large discounts where car load lots are taken and cash paid. To illustrate, some farmers not far from Watertown formed an association to buy together feed in car load lots. Two of the enterprising millers concerned in the city sent agents to the first meeting these farmers held and offered to furnish them with the best grades of feeding stuff at wholesale prices for cash, which in some cases amounted to $2, $4 and even $5 a ton, saving from the retail price. Every grange can do the same thing if it will.

FOOT WEAR FOR AUTUMN.

Variations on Summer Styles in Shoes For Women.

The last season has been notable in the fashionable world for the attention bestowed upon the feet, and the coming one will be marked by the same characteristics. It will be impossible, of course, to display the fantastic foot wear which adorned the summer promenades upon the winter streets, but in the house, both by day and night, my lady will find ample opportunity for the elaborate clothing of her pedal extremities.

In evening slippers, says the Illustrated Footwear Fashion, there is deluge of patterns and ideas which defy classification. Straps and open laced designs are conspicuous, and some colonial are seen, but with small tongues and grosgrain silk bows instead of large tongues and buckles.

No radical change is observable in the fall foot wear fashions, the only novelties being variations on the summer styles. It is impossible for heels to grow any higher, for they have reached their limit, and it is unlikely that they will grow lower at present, although some dealers anticipate such a change from the fact that a good many heels have been returned to them to be lowered. The extra high Cuban heel seems to be gaining on the Louis Quinze and is all the rage, for many women will wear the former who would not tolerate the latter, thinking, quite without reason, that because the Cuban heel is not concave it is all right. The order of the day seems to be high heels, narrow toes and close edges.

With improved methods in the making of bright leathers they will be worn more than ever. They are all liable to crack, it is true, but the new varieties, being softer than the old patent leather, are less likely to do so, and they look well quite as long as or even longer than kid and calf. Button boots for women are gaining ground, and one of the reasons advanced for the higher prices of some of the new shoes is an increase in the price of shoe buttons.

PORTO RICO'S PUBLIC LAND.

Nearly One Hundred Thousand Acres to Be Thrown Open to Settlers.

The recent proclamation of President Roosevelt designating between 90,000 and 100,000 acres of land in Porto Rico to be set apart as public lands has led to many inquiries, especially in the United States, as to what these lands are worth and how they may be obtained by individuals, writes the San Juan correspondent of the Philadelphia Press. They are worth from $5 an acre up, and when cultivated some of the tracts will doubtless increase in worth twentyfold.

It is not probable that they will be sold. The legislative assembly, which will meet in January next, will doubtless arrange to lease them for long terms and at a low price, proceeds under the insular law.

University of Porto Rico, the land will be practically sold to the best bidder, and the proceeds will be used for the full indemnity of the land. The land is now being improved by the government, and becomes necessary for the land to be thrown open to the public may be classified as follows:

First.—High woody lands, suitable for trees, these lands being also preferred for coffee cultivation.

Second.—Low brushy lands, suitable for fruits and the cultivation of minor products and sometimes utilized for planting sugar cane.

Third.—Level lands, fit for the planting of sugar cane, cotton, rice and rich pasturage.

Fourth.—Argill and clayish lands, adapted for the manufacture of bricks and other articles of domestic use.

There are also lands on which can be produced as good tobacco as the best obtained in the island of Cuba. It requires only wise and careful manipulation from the moment of seeding to the sorting, drying and curing processes. As a general rule, most of all lands are proper for the cultivation of fruits, especially oranges and limes.

Pleased at It.

"The fools are not all dead yet," said the angry husband.

"I'm glad of it, dear," calmly replied the other half of the combination. "I never did look well in black."—Chicago News.

Signs of Autumn.

The blithe straw hat has passed away. The fates have rung its knell. Oh, nevermore 'twill see the day—farewell, farewell, farewell!

The watermelon, too, is gone. And eke the cantaloupe. Reminding us how joy speeds on and life itself, and hope.

No more those giddy summer suits and giddy socks we'll see. Since round the eaves the cool wind scoots And wanders restlessly.

Put by the breezy negligee. Likewise the useless belt (it held no pants up, anyway). Since autumn gusts are felt.

Put by the smooth low quarter shoe That always looked so neat; There's nothing more for it to do. Since there is no more heat.

Fold up, ye gentle female folk, The gauzy summer waist. That had the come and kiss me yoke. So cheering, choice and chased.

Get out the moth balls, camphor gum And other useful things. For, lo, the autumn days have come, And this is not Hot Springs.

Today is pleasant, but tomorrow, With mad and rueful soul, We may be rushing out to borrow A scuttler of coal.

THE BOYS OF '47.

Conquerors of Mexico Meet in Annual National Convention.

The annual meeting of survivors of the Mexican War (1847-48) was held at Indianapolis, Ind., recently. Chauncey Forward Sargent of Bellwood, was present at the reunion and enjoyed himself immensely. The following extract is from an Indianapolis paper:

"The chambers of Indiana's House of Representatives was occupied by an interesting body of men. Some were grizzled and stouped and infirm with the encroachments of time. Some wore coats of blue with highly polished brass buttons, all wore beautiful badges on their lapels. They were survivors of the Mexican war and they were there from Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois, and a few were from Ohio. Three came all the way from Pennsylvania to attend the gathering, for it is a national affair. One hundred and sixty of these veterans registered, representing a body of 3,700 men scattered all over the country. The occasion of this gathering is the annual meeting of the National Association of Mexican War Veterans.

"Chauncey F. Sargent, of Bellwood, Pa., a member of the Scott Legion, of Philadelphia, and vice-president of the Mexican War Veterans' association, has brought to the convention the tattered remnants of an old Spanish battleflag which before the capture of the city of Mexico, hung as a trophy in the national palace of the republic.

"The body of the flag hangs in tatters of silk, yellow with age, but the truncated cross in the center and the elaborately embroidered arms of Spain in each corner are still bright and unblemished. The coat of arms is the same as that used by Ferdinand and Isabella, and their successors on the united thrones of Aragon and Castile. The banner is ancient enough in appearance to have figured at the fall of Granada or at one of the triumphant receptions of Columbus, fresh from the discovery of the new world.

"After capture of the city of Mexico by the American army, while the national palace was being occupied by Company A, of the Second Pennsylvania Volunteers, the flag was secured by Capt. John W. Johnston, through the connivance of an old Spanish padre, who was the custodian of the palace, and kindly 'looked the other way' while the banner was taken from the palace walls. The flag belongs to the widow of Captain Johnston, who prizes it highly. Mr. Sargent takes the most tender care of the relic, not allowing it to pass from his own hands."

A Fast Age.

We are living in a fast age, whether wisely or not time may tell those who follow after us. In this prosperous land of ours many things tend to the fast life—fast in too many respects. Speed in business is one thing, but with speed over accumulating, more or less demoralization comes, and let us all hope that this may be rather a surface manifestation than a deep growth. Men burn the candle at both ends. They have not time to masticate their food. This is true not only of the business class, but as well of those who seek pleasure in sports. Haste is the daily watch-word. We go to New York and return in a few hours; we travel ten times as much as did our fathers and go an hundred times as far, and in less time. Millions are turned in a day; transactions which before could readily take a year are finished before nightfall. It is so in many, very many, things—in modes of living, in trade and traffic, in fashion, and all too sadly in excesses. The skyscraper goes up as soon as a country home. It is filled with tenants of both sexes, so brought together that familiarity take the place of independence. Woman's rapid rush into various trades and callings has its merit, and it likewise brings out many demerits. The fashions tend to vulgarity, if not worse. The woman of the period is all right, when strong in will and virtue but too many of her weaker sisters, meeting allurements all too suddenly, fall by the wayside. So wags our world, and while it wags we pile up wealth; we invite population, but not the natural increase around the American fireside.

Let us remember, and always remember, that it is not all gold that glitters; that wealth may come too rapidly; that it may pass with even greater speed. Let us at all times, in our home circle, have a kind word for the old-time virtues, and the more quiet methods of living.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves? In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor and general debility.

How are they expelled? By Hood's Sarsaparilla which also builds up the system that has suffered from them. It is the best of all medicines for all humors.

THE DEATH DICE.

The Question of Guilt Decided by the Dice Box.

The German emperor has just made a most interesting historic presentation to the Hohenzollern museum, says the Teller. It consists of the famous "death dice," by the help of which one of Kaiser Wilhelm's ancestors decided a difficult case about the middle of the seventeenth century. A beautiful young girl had been murdered, and suspicion fell on two soldiers, Ralph and Alfred, who were rival suitors for her hand. As both prisoners denied their guilt, and even torture failed to extract a confession from either, Prince Frederick William, the Kaiser's ancestor, decided to cut the gordian knot with the dice box. The two soldiers should throw for their lives, the loser to be executed as the murderer. The event was celebrated with great pomp and solemnity, and the prince himself assisted at this appeal to divine intervention, as it was considered by everybody, including the accused themselves.

Ralph was given the first throw, and he drew sixes, the highest possible number, and no doubt felt jubilant. The dice box was then given to Alfred, who fell on his knees and prayed aloud: "Almighty God, thou knowest that I am innocent. Protect me I beseech thee!"

Rising to his feet he threw the dice with such force that one of them broke in two. The unbroken one showed six, the broken one also showed six, and the bit that had been split off showed one, giving a total of thirteen, or one more than the throw of Ralph. The whole audience thrilled with astonishment, while the prince exclaimed, "God has spoken!" Ralph, regarding the miracle as a sign from heaven, confessed his guilt and was sentenced to death. It is probable that Alfred ever after did not number himself among those who look upon thirteen as an unlucky number.

Autumn Arbor Day.

The law wisely requires the observance of Arbor Day in the public schools. The rapid destruction of our forests has alarmed the farseeing citizens of the Commonwealth. The gradual purchase of large tracts for forestry purposes is but the beginning of what should be done to avert the scarcity of timber and the other attendant evils which threaten the material welfare of our people. The new career which is opening to those who dedicate their lives to forestry, and the important service which they can render to future generations should be pointed out to the aspiring youth in our schools. Every boy and every girl should be taught how to plant and protect trees. The value of trees for shade, for fruit, and for industrial purposes should be duly emphasized. Their significance in the domain of literature and ethical instruction, should be brought to the notice of our young people. The time is past when argument is needed to show the importance of a proper observance of Arbor Day in all the schools of America.

Since many rural schools are not in session when the regular Arbor Day is observed, and since trees can be planted in the autumn as well as in the spring, it has become customary to observe an Arbor Day in the fall of the year. In accordance with this established custom Friday, October 16th, 1903, is designated as Autumn Arbor Day, and superintendents, teachers and pupils are asked to observe the day by the planting of trees and by other suitable exercises.

NATHAN C. SCHAEFFER, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Harrisburg, September 21st, 1903.

Saved from an Enraged Elk.

A big elk belonging to John DuBois, of DuBois, broke out of its enclosure on Clear run and gave trouble when an effort was made to capture it. The elk ran for Henry Weaver, who threw his arm around the animal's neck to save himself, but was thrown fully ten feet. After he alighted he was partly hid, and in racing for him a second time the now enraged elk went over and beyond Weaver several feet. When he turned for a third attack, Weaver felt that his time had come and knowing Ed. Mix had a gun, yelled at him to fire, which the latter did, killing the elk instantly, probably saving Weaver's life.

WEBSTER'S CREED.

A Recent Discovery of the Great Statesman's Religious Beliefs as Penned by His Own Hand.

The religious faith of Daniel Webster, as set forth in a letter written by himself such is the noteworthy document just published by Dr. Smith, of Concord, N. H. It is printed in "The Christian Intelligencer," from which we quote.

The letter was written to Rev. Thomas Worcester, formerly pastor of the Congregational Church in Salisbury, N. H. which is accompanied with a confession of his religious faith, both of which are in his own handwriting. He remained a member of that church, in Salisbury, until his death.

The letter and confession were never before published. They are as follows:—

Roseau, August 8, 1807.

Dear Sir:—The other day we were conversing respecting confession of faith. Some time ago I wrote down for my own use a few propositions in the shape of articles, intending to exhibit a very short summary of the doctrine of the Christian religion as they impress my mind. I have taken the liberty to enclose a copy for your perusal.

I am, sir, with respect,

Yours, etc.

D. WEBSTER.

HE CONFESSES.

I believe in the existence of Almighty God, who created and governs the whole world. I am taught this by the works of Nature and the word of revelation.

I believe that God exists in three persons; this I learn from revelations alone. Nor is it any objection to this belief that I cannot comprehend how one can be three, or three one. I hold it my duty to believe, not what I can comprehend or account for, but what my Maker teaches me.

I believe the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament to be the will and Word of God.

I believe Jesus Christ to be the Son of God. The miracles which He wrought authority and render it proper for me to believe whatever He asserts; I believe therefore, all His declarations, as well when He declares Himself the son of God, as when He declares any other proposition. And I believe there is no other way to salvation than through the merits of His atonement.

I believe that things past, present and to come are all equally present in the mind of the Deity; that with Him there is no succession of time, nor of ideas; that, therefore, the relative terms, past, present and future, as used among men, cannot, with strict propriety, be applied to Deity. I believe in the doctrines of foreknowledge and predestination, as thus expounded. I do not believe in those doctrines as imposing any fatality or necessity on men's actions, or any way infringing free agency.

I believe in the utter inability of any human being to work out his own salvation without the constant aid of the spirit of all grace.

I believe in the universal Providence of God; and leave to Epicurus, and his more unreasonable followers in modern times, the inconsistency of believing that God made a world which he does not take the trouble of governing.

Although I have great respect for some other forms of worship, I believe the Congregational mode, on the whole, to be preferable to any other.

I believe religion to be a matter not of demonstration, but of faith. God requires us to give credit to the truths which He reveals, not because we can prove them, but because He declares them. When the mind is reasonably convinced that the Bible is the Word of God, the only remaining duty is to receive its doctrines with full confidence of their truth and practice them with a pure heart.

I believe that the Bible is to be understood and received in the plain and obvious meaning of its passages; since I cannot persuade myself that a book intended for the instruction and conversion of the whole world should cover its true meaning in such mystery and doubt that none but critics and philosophers can discover it.

I believe that the experiments and subtleties of human wisdom are more likely to obscure than to enlighten the revealed will of God and that He is the most accomplished Christian scholar who hath been educated at the feet of Jesus, and in the College of Fishermen.

I believe that all true religion consists in the heart and the affections, and that therefore all creeds and confessions are fallible and uncertain evidences of evangelical piety.

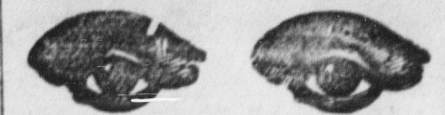

Finally, I believe that Christ has imposed on all His disciples a life of active benevolence; that He who refrains only from what He thinks to be sinful has performed, but a part, and a small part of His duty; that He is bound to do good and communicate, to love His neighbor, to give food and drink to His enemy, and to endeavor, so far as in Him lies, to promote peace, truth, piety, and happiness in a wicked and fallen world, believing that in the great day which is to come there will be no other standard of merit, no other criterion of character, than that which is already established—"By their fruits ye shall know them."

"He Won't Die"

Of consumption is a remark often made of a fleshy man. The remark expresses the popular recognition of the fact that the sign of consumption is emaciation, loss of flesh. On the other hand, a gain in flesh is a sure sign that wasting diseases are being cured.

Emaciated people with obstinate coughs, bleeding lungs, night-sweats and weakness, have been perfectly cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The several steps of the cure were recorded in ounces and pounds of increasing weight. When there is gain in flesh the wasting disease is being surely cured.

Mr. W. H. Whitmore, of Arkton, Rockingham Co., Va., writes: "Our son contracted a deep cold about the first of July, 1899, and had a terrible cough. We called a doctor and he pronounced it irritation of the bronchial tubes, with asthmatic trouble, and he informed me that my son was liable to die at any time. He told me that if we could keep the bronchial tubes open he might cure him, but after treating him several weeks and my son growing worse all the time, I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Golden Pellets.' I had seen several almost miraculous cures brought about by the use of these medicines, and of course I had wonderful faith in them. He used three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' at home and one of the 'Pellets,' and was then well enough to go to West Virginia, taking a supply with him. I am just in receipt of a letter from him from which I quote: 'I am well and hearty and getting very fleshy.'"

PENNSY MEN GET THEIR MONEY

Great Company Defends W. W. Rogers and G. O. Smith Agencies.

The following announcement was made at the general offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad company at Altoona Wednesday:

"The Pennsylvania Railroad company has, after a long contention in the courts and considerable expense and trouble, succeeded in defeating the collection agencies of W. W. Rogers and G. O. Smith in the attachment of wages of its employees under the laws of West Virginia and Missouri, and also secured a general release from these people, discharging the railroad company from all further liability as garnishee in these cases. All money, therefore, now in the hands of the company will be returned to the employees as fast as it can be gathered in from the different departments. This will necessarily take some days, as the attachments first commenced in September, 1901, and it will require time to get the necessary receipts and signatures to the rolls of so many men and for such a long period."

During the two years the wages of 1,562 employees were tied up, the total sum of money aggregating over $30,000.

The old claims were bought by Rogers and Smith from mercantile, fifty cents on the dollar being paid for them. They were then sued out in West Virginia and Illinois.

Eight hundred were duplicated in Missouri, but the courts declared them illegal. Within the next ten days the money will be returned to the men.

Woods Full of Bears.

To some it may not and to others it may be good news to know that black bear will be more plentiful in Pennsylvania than ever this fall and winter. Reports from neighboring counties are to the effect that the summer just passed has been wonderfully conducive to the growth of the bear family. Lack of forest fires is the principal cause of the unprecedented increase. Then, too, the rainy season that so effectively prevented the forest fires afforded a wealth of leaf and undergrowth for young Bruin; berries were plentiful and this fall's crop of acorns and chestnuts add still another luxury to the Bruin tribe's bill of fare. More and more each season does bear hunting become a profitable pastime for the hunters. A good bear hide is worth from $15 to $20, while the meat usually sells for 20 cents a pound. Hence the fact that this fall promises more game than ever before is very good news to the chap who is brave enough to make bear hunting his business.

Alcoholism and Heredity.

In a well known but slightly sensational medical journal, "The London Lancet," a rather surprising opinion is advanced by G. Archdall Reid. He is satisfied that a predisposition to drinking is not inherited from intemperate parents. He argues in this fashion: If offspring are affected, then, in time, the race grows degenerate and finally becomes extinct. On the other hand, if they are not, then the power of resistance becomes developed and strengthened, and later generations crave liquor less than did their ancestors. The latter view explains to Mr. Reid the present existence of old races like the Jews, Greeks and the nations of southern Europe, who for ages have had alcoholic beverages. Younger stocks, like that of northern Europe, having had less time in which to acquire resisting powers, might, on the other hand, show a greater susceptibility. In other words, he holds that alcohol, as well as disease, is the cause of an innate immunity against itself.

To this doctrine much dissent has been expressed. A resident of Buffalo, Lawrence Irwell, declares that if a distinct craving for drink is not transmitted to children, there is at least an inherent susceptibility. A writer in "The Medical Record" denies that the people of southern Europe are today abstemious. He then remarks: "Mr. Reid cannot prove that the children of habitual drunkards are normally developed both mentally and physically. When drink is indulged in to excess through successive generations it results in insanity, paralysis, idiocy or cerebral defect of some kind. The theory that in a drinking nation the unit is weeded out and that among the survivors a considerable degree of immunity to alcohol is established is plausible and probably. The craving for drink may not be directly transmitted, but the children of drunken parents or one drunken parent will in all likelihood inherit some physical or mental defect or both, which may of a certainty be put down to the drinking habits of their progenitors."

Unknown Man Killed by the Cars.

An unknown man, aged about 35 years, was run over and instantly killed Wednesday evening at Houtdale by a jerk water on its south-bound trip. The body was very badly mutilated, and he had nothing about him by which he could be identified. He had black hair, black moustache, wore dark suit, slippers, and also wore a K. G. E. pin. He also carried a grip, in which he had a light suit of clothes. The man was thought to have been deaf, and did not hear the approaching train, nor was he seen in time by the engineer to stop the train.

—The postoffice department is constantly in receipt of requests for the issuance of mourning postage stamps for use on black bordered stationery. People in all grades of life assert that there is no harmony or appropriateness in an envelope with a black rim, with a red stamp stuck in the corner, and they beg the department to issue a black stamp. There is, perhaps, as much justification for the black stamp as there is for the black bordered envelope, but neither is required for good taste.

A CLEVER ILLUSTRATION WITH CONCLUSIVE PROOF.

There is an old formula in philosophy which says that no two things can occupy the same place at the same time. As a simple illustration, drive a nail into a board and you will find with every stroke of the hammer, the nail will force aside the particles of wood into which it is being driven, finally making a place for itself, and proving that the nail and the wood do not occupy the same place at the same time.

DISEASES OF THE KIDNEYS AND BLADDER and Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cannot occupy the same place at the same time. If you are troubled with frequent pains in the back; if your urine stains linen; if you urinate frequently during the night, and a burning pain accompanies its passage, your kidneys and bladder are in bad shape and should be treated at once.

Every dose of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY slowly but surely pushes aside some of the particles of the diseased diseases of the kidneys and bladder, liver, blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia and constipation, until they completely disappear. Do not lose faith or find fault, because if these diseases have fastened their grip on you the longer and harder it is to drive them away.

NEW GREEK THEATER.

California University's Great Open Air Playhouse.

NOTHING LIKE IT IN AMERICA.

Semicircular Building, Donated by W. H. Hearst, is Said to Have Few Counterparts and None Worthy of Comparison—Stage is a Hundred and Twenty-two Feet Long.

A dramatic festival at the University of California, plans for which have been in process of development for several months, was inaugurated the other day by the dedicatory exercises of the great open air theater presented to the university by William Randolph Hearst, says a San Francisco dispatch to the New York Herald.

The festival is unique not only in the annals of Berkeley, but in college life throughout America, for it marks the completion of a structure that is without parallel in the United States, and it is not an exaggeration to add that it cannot be duplicated by the architectural marvels of the old world.

The realization of the enterprise that was celebrated in the presence of a throng of men and women of collegiate and social distinction renders it possible that the culminating event of the college life of the future generations may be viewed from their point of view of a structure that is an almost perfect reproduction of the classic Dionysian theater at Epidaurus, in Greece, and that has not its counterpart in the modern world.

The nearest approach to the outdoor theater of which not only Berkeley, but America, can be proud of is to be found at Nîmes, in the south of France, and at Oxford, England. The first has become scarcely more than a ruin, and the second is so vastly inferior in point of size and magnificence of execution as to almost preclude rational comparison.

The completed structure is made up of two distinct parts, the stage corresponding to the classic logeion and the auditorium being a reproduction of the Greek theater. The former is 122 feet long by a depth of twenty-eight feet and surrounded by a solid concrete wall four feet high.

This is enriched by a complete classic order of Greek doric columns with stylolates and entablature pierced by five entrances and its ends forming two massive pylons. The theater proper is semicircular in form and 254 feet in diameter and is divided into two concentric tiers of seats.

The first series of these is built around a level circle fifty feet in diameter and five and a half feet below the level of the stage, corresponding accordingly to the portion of the ancient Greek structure devoted to the choruses and orchestra. Without this circle the seats slope up gradually until the stage level is reached at a circle corresponding in diameter to the terminal pylons of the stage walls. This line is marked architecturally by an aisle anciently called the diazoma, extending around the semicircle of seats between the orchestra and the topmost circle.

Beyond the diazoma the seats rise abruptly to the outer wall, making an angle of thirty degrees. The details of the stage have been worked out in cement by hand.

The completion of this structure is regarded as an event of so much importance in college life and as marking the realization of an enterprise of such magnitude that it has been felt by students and faculty alike that it could only be fittingly commemorated by an entertainment unusual in conception and as perfect as student talent could make possible in execution.

The dedication was followed by the presentation of Aristophanes' "Birds."

Hygiene Courses For British Public.

The school board of London is trying to educate the people in hygiene, says the New York Tribune. It has decided to open twenty experimental classes, and if these succeed more will be organized. Already eighty head teachers have applied to have these classes started in their evening schools, but at present only twenty will be opened. The best lecturers have been selected for the classes. Different classes of schools in various districts will be opened, some among the very poor, others in better to do working class neighborhoods. Each lecture is to be made as practical and as elementary as possible, and a nontechnical graphic treatment of the subject is enjoined. Even if the syllabus is not closely followed the practical work is in no case to be omitted.

The End of Punch and Judy.

The sad word recently came from Paris that Punch and Judy are losing their favor with the youngsters who spend the fine days in the various squares and parks. There are still two Guignol theaters left in the Champs Elysees, under the trees of the park, near the president's palace. These rent for $147 a year. Late one was put up at auction, and not a solitary bid was made for it. It will be torn down and its properties sold as rubbish.

New Uniform For Prussian Troops.

The German military administration has decided to change again the uniform of the Prussian army, says the Berlin correspondent of the New York World. A new campaign uniform is to be made of a greenish gray color, with buttons of the same shade. Instead of the tunic now worn, there will be a blouse cut in the Russian fashion.

BONE FOOD

Soft and crooked bones mean bad feeding. Call the disease rickets if you want to. The growing child must eat the right food for growth. Bones must have bone food, blood must have blood food and so on through the list.

Scott's Emulsion is the right treatment for soft bones in children. Little doses every day give the stiffness and shape that healthy bones should have.

Bow legs become straighter, loose joints grow stronger and firmness comes to the soft heads.

Wrong food caused the trouble. Right food will cure it.

In thousands of cases Scott's Emulsion has proven to be the right food for soft bones in childhood.

NURSERY ON NEW YACHT

Steam Craft Will Also Have an Automobile House on Board.

The name of the owner of a steam, barkentine rigged yacht, plans for which George Crouse Cook and Captain Howard Patterson, naval architects, have completed, is sedulously guarded, says the New York Tribune. He is said to be a prominent member of the New York Yacht club. The yacht will be able to cruise 3,000 miles at the rate of nine knots an hour and will be armed.

The vessel will have an automobile house and davits adapted for hoisting such vehicles over the side. A complete nursery, with play and sleeping rooms, and a dark room for photography will also be among the appointments of the vessel. The crew will consist of seven officers and twenty-one men. The hull is to be 206 feet over all, 172 feet on the water line, 32 feet beam, 12 feet draft and 23 feet deep to the upper deck. It is to be constructed according to the government specifications for auxiliary cruisers, entirely of steel, with three decks. On the main deck will be spacious drawing and dining rooms, the owner's suit of bedrooms, six bedrooms for guests, a library, women's room and smoking room. Independent accommodations will be made for different classes of the crew.

In the hold will be cold storage rooms, refrigerating machinery and a powder magazine, in addition to regular ship dunnage. The machinery will consist of two water tube boilers and a single triple expansion engine. Under natural draft the vessel will go twelve knots an hour. Six lifeboats will be carried. The total cost will be $180,000.

NEW FIRE MASK.

Improved Helmet to Be Used by the Paris Department.

A member of the Paris fire brigade has invented a new mask which is claimed to be a great improvement over all previous ones, says a London special to the Chicago Inter Ocean.

It can be fixed to an ordinary helmet and around the neck by straps. The visor is of mica, protected by wire. In front of the mouth two pipes open, one furnishing fresh air and the other carrying off what has been breathed. A reservoir of water on the back as a knapsack contains two compartments, one holding two steel jars filled with compressed air. The other bag, which is called the lung and which is connected by copper tubing with the steel jars and special mechanism, admits air only at nominal pressure to the lung, whence it is conveyed to the mouth.

The mask leaves the ears uncovered. An electric bell gives warning when the supply of air is running out. The apparatus weighs only twelve kilograms and will be put into immediate use in the Paris fire brigade.

Chaperons For Coeds.

A new regulation of the Missouri University board of curators has opened a new profession for women, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. Each society in Columbia living in a chapter house must have a chaperon. She must be a professional and is to be paid a salary. In addition to this, the girls under her charge must provide her with theater tickets, free rides in livery teams and see that she has a good time. Her board at the chapter house has to be furnished free, and the girls are to be responsible to her for their conduct. This rule, which was adopted at a recent meeting of the curators, will be rigidly enforced.

Monument In Honor of Pigeons.

A proposal is on foot to erect a monument at Paris, France, in commemoration of the pigeons which rendered such great service to the city during the siege in 1870-71 by bringing news from the outside world, says the Philadelphia Times. It will consist of a shield raised on four pillars bearing the arms of the city, with a pigeon perched on top ready to take flight. At the foot of the shield will be another pigeon sitting on her nest, and a third pigeon will be lying near with its wing broken by a bullet. The monument will probably be erected in the Jardin des Plantes.

Indoor Snowstorm.

A writer tells of an indoor snowstorm on a very clear cold evening at a party given in Stockholm, Sweden. Many people were gathered in a single room, which became so warm as to be insufferable. The window sashes were found frozen, and a pane of glass was smashed out. A cold air current rushed in, and at the same instant flakes of snow were seen to fall on the floor in all parts of the room. The atmosphere was so saturated with moisture that the sudden fall in temperature produced a snowfall indoors.

TO VOTE NEW BALLOT

Republicans Will Put a Cross In Square Opposite Party Name.

NEW GROUPING OF CANDIDATES

The Names of the Parties are Printed On the Extreme Left of the Ballot, and There is a Square After Each Party's Name.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Oct. 13.—One of the important duties of the members of the Republican county committees throughout the state between now and election day will be to instruct the voters regarding the changes that have been made in the form of the official ballot and the method of marking the ballot so as to cast a vote for the full Republican ticket.

Under the provisions of the law as passed at the last session of the legislature the ballot will be smaller than heretofore. The party columns have been abolished, and the names of the candidates will be grouped under the titles of the different offices for which they are running. The name of his party, however, will be printed after the name of each candidate.

In lieu of the party column and the party circle at the head of each column, there shall be printed on the extreme left of each ballot the names of the several parties, and after the name of each party there shall be printed a square of sufficient size to permit of the convenient insertion of a cross mark, like this:

REPUBLICAN	X
DEMOCRATIC

PUT CROSS MARK IN SQUARE.

This cross mark is to serve the same purpose as did the cross mark used for the old ballot.

When this cross mark is placed in the square after the name of any party, in this group of parties on the left of the ballot, it signifies the intention of the voter to vote for all the candidates nominated by that party.

Every mark within this square shall be equivalent to a mark against every name designated by that political appellation or party name, including candidates nominated by more than one party or group of citizens.

At the head of each ticket shall be printed the following instructions:

"To vote a straight party ticket mark a cross (X) in the square opposite the name of the party of your choice in the first column.

"A cross mark in the square opposite the name of any candidate indicates a vote for that candidate."

INSTRUCTIONS AS TO COUNTING.

A book of instructions has been issued by the Republican state committee, and Secretary Andrews expects that before the end of this week he will have copies of the same in the hands of all the county committees. In this book, which also contains other valuable data regarding the new law, the following instructions are given to election officers regarding the method of counting the ballots:

The effect of a cross mark (X) in the square opposite the name of the party of his choice, in the straight party column on the left of the ballot, shall be equivalent to a vote for every candidate of the party so marked.

The placing of a cross mark (X) in the square at the right of the name of each candidate indicates a vote for each candidate so marked.

A cross mark (X) in the square opposite the name of the party in the straight party column on the left of the ballot, votes a straight ticket, and is equivalent to a vote for every candidate of the party so marked, and the marking of one or more names in the group of candidates of another party, is the marking of more names than the voter is entitled to vote for, and is a marking of the ballot otherwise than is directed by the act, and the ballot must not be counted for such office, but must be counted for all other offices, for which the name of the candidates have been properly marked.

For example—A voter places a cross mark opposite the name "REPUBLICAN" in the column on the left of the ballot—this mark would indicate that he had voted for every candidate of that party. If the voter, after having so marked his ballot, should place a cross mark in the square to the right of the name of a candidate of the Democratic party, his vote would not be counted for either or any of the candidates for that office, because the voter would be doing so vote for more candidates for that office than he is entitled to vote for, his vote, however, should be counted for all the other candidates of the Republican party.

The placing of a cross mark in the square opposite the name of the party of his choice in the straight party column on the left of the ballot, and at the same time placing a cross mark in the square to the right of the individual name of any or all of the candidates of that party, will not affect the validity of the ballot. It will simply be surplusage, and a vote must be counted for each candidate of that party.

When a candidate has died or withdrawn, and a substituted nomination is made after the ballots are printed, there shall be prepared and distributed with the ballots suitable slips of paper bearing the substituted name, together with the title of the office and having adhesive paste upon the reverse side, which shall be offered to each voter with the regular ballot, and may be affixed thereto. Under no other circumstances can a "sticker" be used.

A voter must not cross out any name on the ballot, nor cover a name with a sticker or paper, except in the case referred to herein.

Ballots with the name of a candidate erased by a voter must be counted, for the name so erased, if a cross mark has been placed in the square opposite to the name of his party.

All votes should be counted, except where the voter marks more names for any office than he is entitled to vote for, or for any reason it is impossible to determine the voter's choice for any office, to be filled. The ballot should be self-explanatory.

ROOSEVELT PLEASED

President Delighted With Reports From Chairman Penrose.

PENNSYLVANIA WILL BE TRUE

He is Told That the Keystone State Will Roll Up a Big Majority Next Month For Republicanism and Prosperity.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—President Roosevelt's interest in the election in Pennsylvania next month was significantly manifested in a talk with Senator Penrose, who was among the visitors at the White House last week.

The president made no secret of his feeling of gratitude toward the Republicans of the Keystone state for the conspicuous part taken by their delegates to the last Republican national convention in bringing about his nomination for the vice presidency, despite the opposition of Senator Hanna and others, who were at that time very potential in the councils of the Republican national committee.

Since the responsibilities of the presidency have devolved upon Roosevelt there are no two men to whose judgment and advice on public affairs he gives greater consideration than Senators Quay and Penrose.

CHAT WITH THE PRESIDENT.

Senator Penrose's visit to Washington last week was not in relation to politics, but to close up several matters before the departments. His call on the president was merely a social visit, but the political situation was incidentally discussed. The president was keenly interested in the reports given him by Senator Penrose regarding the outlook for a large Republican majority in Pennsylvania on November 3 next. Senator Penrose informed him that throughout the state the young Republicans have taken hold of campaign work as they have never done before, and this condition is generally attributed to the belief that the larger the Republican vote in Pennsylvania this year the greater emphasis will be given to the fact that Pennsylvania is a Roosevelt state, and proposes to lead the Roosevelt column in the coming national campaign.

The action of the last two Republican state conventions in declaring for the nomination of Roosevelt for president and the adoption of resolutions expressing the same sentiment by the Pennsylvania State League of Clubs have all been most pleasing to the president, and when he learned from Senator Penrose the determination of the party workers to roll up an immense Republican majority next month, with a view to affecting public sentiment throughout the country, he was more than delighted.

PITTSBURG FOR CONVENTION.

Senator Penrose, as chairman of the Republican state committee, has decided to heartily co-operate with the leaders of the movement to have the next national Republican convention held in Pittsburgh. He thinks every Pennsylvanian should exert himself to help along this agitation.

"It would be particularly fitting," said Chairman Penrose, "that, with Roosevelt as the candidate and a continuance of the protective tariff the main issue in the coming campaign, that the candidate should be named and the platform formulated in Pittsburgh, the birthplace of the Republican party and the centre of industrial prosperity of the nation. There could be no more appropriate meeting place than Pittsburgh for the national convention next year when we will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the organization of the Republican party."

"With the delegates coming from all parts of the country, what an object lesson in the cause of protection would be presented in Pittsburgh and the valleys of the Allegheny and the Monongahela?"

"In no section of the country can there be given a better exemplification of the desirability of a continuance of the policy of a protective tariff than in Pittsburgh and vicinity. The smoke and the flames from the blasts and the coke ovens of Pennsylvania should be enough to convince the most radical of the so-called tariff revisionists of the middle west that there must be no tinkering with the tariff to disturb business conditions and deprive American labor of employment, just at this time when prosperity abounds in all industrial enterprises."

Young Hobo's Daring Ride.

A young hobo by the name of George Reynolds, who says he has no place of residence, is a top notcher in the business of stealing rides on railroads, save the Lock Haven Democrat. Riding on bumpers and in "side door palace cars" may be the height of the average tramp's travelling ambition, but young Reynolds has no time for such slow means of transportation. First class passage or nothing is his motto. He arrived in this city early Sunday morning on the east bound flyer from Renovo, although he boarded the train perhaps west. His presence was detected when the train left the upriver town and word was telegraphed to the P. and E. station here to dislodge a passenger who was beating his way on top of one of the passenger cars. As the train only stops here in case passengers wish to get off, it was flagged at the station. Sure enough there was the ride-stealer lying flat on top of one of the coaches, unknown to the trainmen, bound for the eastern metropolis on a fast through train. He was yanked off in a jiffy by Night Ticket agent Grier and Night Operator Follmer, and was turned over to Officer John Brendel. The policeman was about to start for the jail with his man, when a sympathizer named Bechtel, who was about the station, in his admiration for and zeal to have the traveler released, overstepped the bounds of propriety, got too fresh, and was nabbed and put in the "cooler" along with the daring young hobo, who will be given a hearing before Alderman Parsons.

Face to Face With Black Bear.

Beech Creek, Oct. 13.—Meeting a big black bear face to face in the public road is not a common or desired experience, but it actually happened to Harry E. Knarr, principal of the schools of this borough. He boarded at the house of his father Saul Knarr in the township and was returning home about dark in the evening. The road he travels is rather lonely the farm houses all standing back some distance. When near the lane leading into the Lion farm, about a mile from town and near the Knarr home, the young man saw a dark object ahead of him in the road. Never thinking of wild beasts he continued his pace. Coming nearer, he noticed that the animal raised itself on its hind legs and uttered unusual sounds. Mr. Knarr stopped in less time than it takes to tell it and found himself in a mighty embarrassing situation. Man and bear stood face to face looking at each other, one probably scared as much as the other. But neither cared to be the aggressor, and in a minute or two both turned tail and slowly marched out the lane in the Lion farm and the teacher went on his way rejoicing.

Where Congress Held Sessions.

St. Louis Oct 13.—Photographs of all the buildings in which the Congress of the United States has held sessions since the foundation of the republic will be one of the interesting exhibits in the Government building at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. It is not generally known that the sessions of Congress have been held in as many as ten different halls in the United States. The first Congress met in Carpenter's Hall, Philadelphia. It then met in Congress Hall, in the same city. Later it met in Congress Hall in Baltimore. During a troublesome period in the Revolutionary War the Congress met for one day in the old Court House in Lancaster, Penna. This court house was torn down in 1853, but a good photograph of the structure is still in the possession of the government. Congress at one time met in York, Penna., then at Princeton, N. J. then in the Court House at Trenton, N. J. and again at Federal Hall, N. Y. Finally Washington became the permanent capital of the United States.

Rats Furnish Music in Hotel.

The cellar of the Keystone Hotel has been musical today with the tinkle of tiny bells. This morning E. J. Miller and Harry Jones caught two rats, and after fastening bells to their tails, released them in the hotel cellar. The rodents have been playing "Till them that you saw me" and other selections ever since. They are said to be lively bell-ringers. Tyrone Herald.

Teacher in the Backwoods.

At a small school in the backwoods a well meaning but misguided instructor gave his pupils the task of subtracting 629 from 880 788 889 until nothing remained as a home lesson. On the way from school the children rejoiced at so easy a requisition, but once at work their rejoicing was speedily turned to sorrow. After working for hours without any perceptible diminution of the figures the youngsters gave up in despair. Parents then tried, but with no better success. And small wonder. In order to complete the task the number given would have to be subtracted 1,400,300 times, leaving a small remainder. Some indignant parent calculated that, working at the rate of three subtractions a minute for twelve hours a day, the task given the children for an evening's exercise would require a little more than a year and nine months to accomplish.

In Regard to Use of Fire Arms.

Burgess Walker handed us a copy of the Act of Assembly which was approved April 15th 1903, and which goes into effect on 15th of this month. "Sec. I. Be it enacted, etc., That six months after the passage of this Act it shall be unlawful for person to discharge, on the streets or alleys, of any city or borough in this Commonwealth, a flintlock rifle, air gun, spring gun, or any implement which impels with force a metal pellet of any kind." "Sec. II. Any person violating this Act shall be arrested, and fined in the sum of five dollars before the committing magistrate; and for the second offense shall be fined in the sum of fifteen dollars and may undergo an imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not less than ten nor more than thirty days; the person so offending to pay all costs."

Expending the County's Money.

The officious official should be curbed by Judge Love. This character of official is becoming an expensive ornament to Centre county. The officious official is found in many localities, and may be discovered in other personages than the constables. The various fish and game laws are affording business for this class of officials, and the justices who have gained reputations for turning cases over to court on the shinnest pretext are always alert—if not in cahoot—to be the judge in the matter.

Regardless of the result, arrests make a multiplicity of costs, which are always paid either by the defendant or the county.

Call a halt on the officious officer.

Hospital Notes From Walker Township.

Our readers did not know there was a hospital in Walker township, in fact we did not know it ourselves, but by the reports we have from there think there must be one.

Mrs. Hattie Walkey, of Hublersburg was operated on one day recently for a tumor which was successfully removed by Dr. P. S. Fisher, of Zion, assisted by his nephew Dr. W. A. Caven, of Pittsburg.

On the same day a son of H. D. Vonada was operated on for kidney affection and also the 5 year old daughter of Jas. Neff, of Hecla Park for hair lip.

These last two operations were also performed by Doctors Fisher and Caven.

No Place For the Doctor.

A physician whose belief in the future records with that of the late Col. Ingersoll had recently to perform a surgical operation upon a man not select in his language. After etherizing his patient the operation was successfully performed. When the effect of the ether had passed off, the subject, looking wildly around the room, exclaimed: "Where am I?" The doctor replied: "Oh, you are all right." "But," said the man, "I may be all right, but where am I?" The doctor answered jocularly: "In heaven." The patient responded: "If that's so, I'd like to know what you are doing here."

There Are 7,000,000 Civilized Filipinos.

General J. P. Sanger, former chief of staff of General Cushman, but latterly in charge of the census work in the Philippines, has arrived from Manila on his way to Washington. The census was accomplished with the assistance of 7,000 enumerators, and the government today is in possession of 7,000,000 names, representing the civilized portion of the native population of the islands. By carefully compiled figures the uncivilized population is placed at or about 600,000.

An Early Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Sarah Harter, daughter of the late Dr. John F. Harter and Mrs. Charlotte H. Harter, and Robert W. Salisbury, of Pittsburg, took place at 6 o'clock on Tuesday morning at the home of the bride's mother at Millheim. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. McInay, of the M. E. church, in the presence of the relatives and a few immediate friends of the family. The bride and groom left on morning train on a bridal tour. Upon their return they will reside at Pittsburg.

The October 10 Story Book.

Reports of the increasing success of 10 story book continue to multiply. Newsdealers everywhere testify to the remarkable demand for this popular little magazine.

The October number, now at hand, is exceedingly fetching. A clever list of stories by authors of repute or merit are culled for this month. Among the names are found Hayden Carruth, Dorothy Dix, H. S. Canfield, Julia Truitt Bishop and Garrard Harris, all short story writers of national scope.

The leader is the latest thing from the pen of Mr. Carruth, entitled "A Slump in the Umbrella Market," a particularly enjoyable conceit, the humor of which will find everybody. Dorothy Dix writes of "Strange Bedfellows," an adventure wherein an office boy and his master prove themselves worthy of their lady loves. A tale by H. S. Canfield called "The Thread-like Scar" is startling in plot but plausible in conclusion. "The Discarded Bonnet" by Julia Truitt Bishop is a neatly put little love drama in the life of a pretty stenographer. A story "The Corsets of Exhibit A" by Belle Maniates, the bizarre one for the month, is thoroughly unique. The selected masterpiece is "Thrown Way" by Rudyard Kipling.

—Freddie, a 2-years' old son of John R. Haynes, of Williamsport, is dead as a result of drinking about an ounce of whiskey from a flask. The child had been ill, and the father was about to give it a dose of hot water and whiskey. While he was after the water, the child got the bottle of liquor and helped himself. Death ensued seven hours later.

Some of our young ladies who were raised in the city of Port Matilda, while representing the Baptist church, at the recent Association were given a home at a large farm house. As the good farm wife arose early as farmers do, when she began to separate the milk, these young ladies thought the street car was coming, and one said to the other lend me a nickel. No said the others let us get up and walk.

The Drop in Common Steel.

Come all ye fools both far and near And read this my little rhyme, About the Steel Trusts common stock And how they beat your time.

Come all ye wise and long faced saints That have lost on low down Jack. For that is Morgan's winning card That keeps him the inside track.

Poor widows do not weep and sigh For the drop in common stock Will make you wise and give a chance To wear on the same old frock.

Schwab build a church in every town And build them of time stone rock And we'll whitewash the churches sure Just the same as common stock.

Oh what a wicked world this is Oh what a damned old fool, I will throw away the card that lost And go back to Sunday School.

Associated With Lock Haven's Early History.

C. G. Forst, Esq., of Lock Haven Tuesday rounded out a half century in the practice of law. Mr. Forst was born and reared in Nittany valley, Clinton county, studied law and began the practice of his profession in Lock Haven fifty years ago Tuesday, continuing in active practice all these years. Mr. Forst has been a successful barrister, none exceeding him, which to a great extent explains the superstitious belief in 13 being an unlucky number, the semi centennial being the 13th day of October.

Fifty years ago, on October 11, Lyons Musina, the well known citizen of Lock Haven was elected treasurer of Clinton county on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Musina was quite a young man then being but 27 years of age, but the confidence reposed in him was shown by the large majority he received over his opponent R. P. White. The other candidates on the Democratic ticket at that election, all of whom have passed away, were: James Burnside, of Centre county, for president judge; George J. Eldred, of Porter, for assembly; G. W. Halenbake, of Beech Creek, for commissioner; T. T. Abram, Lock Haven; for district attorney; James David, of Beech Creek, county surveyor and Joseph Muliken, of Porter, auditor. The entire Democratic ticket was elected with the exception of Mr. Halenbake. There were but 22 voting districts in Clinton county at that time.

A Business Opportunity.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

Re-Opened Wednesday Under Favorable Circumstances.

The County Fair which owing to bad weather last week proved a failure re-opened Wednesday with bright prospects for a successful three days. The weather is all that could be asked and the race track never was in finer condition. Some fast horses are here and some good racing is assured.

The exhibits are practically all here the same as last week and the midway is better than ever.

The free exhibition before the grand stand is unusually fine and every afternoon at 3 o'clock John McMahon, the daring high diver makes a backward dive from a ladder 45 feet high into a tank that does not contain more than 2 1/2 feet of water.

"The Parish Priest" a Good Show.

"The Parish Priest" was the attraction at Garman's Tuesday night and it was well presented. The audience was the smallest of the season but the show one of the best and deserving of a crowded house.

The play is an admirable one. It teaches charity and honorable life to all and produces a dramatic picture seldom equalled. P. J. McCarthy as Father Whalen, the leading character, presents his part in an effective manner, displaying without effort and with sincerity the manly unpretentious Irishman that he is. The music was fine, the unseen singers producing an effect on the audience seldom witnessed. The scenery and costumes were very complete and the entire company of actors gave complete satisfaction.

Everybody was satisfied and if they should play a return date would no doubt be greeted with a crowded house.

The Exhibits of the Pennsylvania State College and Agricultural Experiment Station at the Centre County Fair.

Among the many interesting exhibits that filled the main building at the Centre County Fair grounds to its full capacity during this and last week, the exhibit of the Pennsylvania State College and Agricultural Experiment Station is deserving of special mention.

The Experiment Station was represented by exhibits from two departments; first, the Department of Agriculture under the management of Prof. George C. Watson, and second, the Department of Botany and Horticulture, under the management of Prof. W. A. Bockhout and Prof. George C. Butz. The College was represented in the Department of the School of Engineering under Prof. L. E. Reber, Dean, and in the Department of the School of Agriculture under Prof. W. A. Bockhout, Acting Dean.

In the Department of Agriculture there were thirteen varieties of wheat, twenty-two of oats and nine of forage crops in the sheaf, sixteen varieties of wheat and eighteen of oats in jars, and forty-five varieties of potatoes. There were also very interesting charts, pictures and publications, as well as drawings of the new Agricultural building now in the course of erection. This Department also contained very interesting bacteriological culture showing the effects of different methods of milking.

In the Department of Horticulture forty two varieties of apples and eleven of pears were exhibited.

The part of the exhibit devoted to the School of Engineering contained excellent samples of students work in plain wood work, lathe work and pattern making. The students work in iron was shown in exhibits of foundry, forge and machine work.

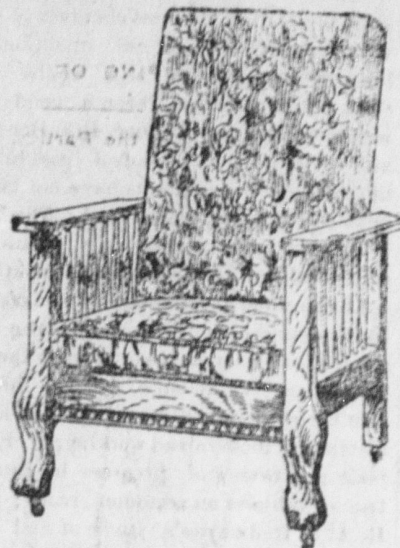

All of this interesting display was most tastefully arranged by the representatives of the College and Experiment Station in charge, and afforded a most excellent opportunity for the people of Centre County to acquaint themselves with very interesting lines of work that are now being so successfully pursued at the State College.

The Fair management desire to express their great appreciation of the aid thus so generously given them by the College in furtherance of the desire of the management to present at the Fair every thing that is interesting and instructive in agriculture and industrial work. They feel that it gives a particularly high stamp to the Fair of our County to be able to have among our exhibits a department showing the work of an Agricultural and Industrial College of the first stamp, located within our County and everywhere recognized as belonging to our County. It was an exhibit of special excellence and every citizen of Centre County should be proud when he comes to his County Fair to know that an exhibit of this character bearing the significance that it does as a product of our local institutions, rightly belongs to Centre County, and that it is so notably and so effectively represented at our Centre County Fair.

If all our farmers would do their share in sustaining the character of the Centre County Fair, with a like interest to that displayed by our Pennsylvania State College, there would be no difficulty in making our Fair truly agricultural and highly beneficial to our County and to every farmer in it.

PUSHING UP BUSINESS

by pushing down prices is the one way to succeed, so long as merit is not sacrificed. We think we have attained "the golden means" by keeping up quality in Pianos and giving prices a gentle push downward. You won't think it—you'll know it when you see and hear our instruments and learn our prices.

We offer this week a number of excellent Pianos just returned from rent. They were new when they went out and have been in use only a few months. A special price will be made on them.

We have also a large line of all the well known makes of Organs at special bargains, $15.00, $20.00, $25.00 and upwards suited for homes and school purposes. Organs to rent at moderate prices. Call or address

DER PENNSYLVANIER

Wann mer's so beguckt, wie sich die Mensch mitenanner paare un vermize—Weisse, Schwarze, Dschinies, Dschäps, Gitaliens, Hungariens, Inschings un wie des Rohr all becht, dann macht es em ganz unheimlich fiele. Die Vögel halte ihre Rehs sauber un ich hab noch net gefehne, daß en Spatz sich mit ere Schwatze gepaart hot oder en Strapp mit ere Daub. Es is schon brownier toorre, Kanaries mit Distelfinte zusammenzuforse, aber was war die Result? Die Junge aus so ere Mätsch becht mer Gsel. Aus freie Stie aber bleibt en jeder diefenter Vogel bei seiner Art. Zuficht Mischhinkel gebt es schier so viel Sorte un Farbe, wie Mensch, un fell tummt bun d'r verbollte Usmigerei.

Do hot mir d'r Peter ferglich en Stid verzählt, wie es ihm gange is mit ere wilde Ent. Sells Ent is an en Telegräpohl hiegefluge un hot sich wehgedu, daß se runnergefall is. Er hot den schene Vogel ufgehorne un en mit heimgenomme. Dort hot er die Ent eigeperet un se gesund gebollet; ander es hot lang genomme, bis se des sehm Futter hot freffe welle, wie die zahme Ente. Wie sich aber d'r Mensch an Alles gewohnt, so gewohnt sich ah en wilde Ent an Vieles, abarbig, wann se recht hungri is, un endlich hot se an fange Korn zu freffe, is zahm geworre un is mit die annere Ent gedrevellet, mit ihne an die Erid naus un Dweeds wieder mit ihne heimgewadelt tumme. En Dag hot se d'r Kopp in die Höß gefiekt, en merkwürdiger Laut bun sich geve un is abgefluge iber d'r Berg naus. D'r Peter hot se gehe sehm un ihr nachgerufe: guetel, du tummst nimme. Awer se is wieder tumme un hot noch efter so Trips gemacht. Se hot ah anfang Dier zu lege, aber mit em Enterich hot se sich net eigeleffe. Wie d'r Peter sagt, hot er fell scharf gewacht un en befunnere Parpes. Se hot dann ah en sche Reicht gebaut, Dier neigelegt un anfang zu krieh, wie des Reicht voll war, wie es sich for en rechtshaffene Ent geheert. D'r Peter hot awer en Suspifchen gehat, un wie emol acht Dag rum wore, hot er die Dier gefiekt. Richtig wore se niz merth un er hot ihr Dier bun seine weisse Ente unnergelegt. Dem arme Dieh is es um acht Dag länger net ankumme, es hot getreilich sei Dutz gebdu un ah richtig die Junge rausgedocht. Awer fott mer's nau glöbe, die Ent hot grad gemert, daß do d'r Rudud in ihrer Werthschafft drei war un se hot forger Hand die Junge alle mitenanner tob gemacht. Des war awer ah ihr End, behofs es hot den Peter so bees gemacht, daß er ihr d'r Kopp abgeschlage hot.

Net viel besser Glid hot d'r Peter gehat mit ere wilde Gans. Des war benevoge: Er hot sich uf en Weg oder d'r annere en baar wilde Gansoier zu belumme gewist un se eener dun seine zahme Gans unnergelegt. Mit em Ausbriehe hot's do fee Drumel geve, aber mitem Uflege is es schlecht gange. Es scheint, daß en zahme Gans enteebers net so partifler is, wie en wilde, oder se is zu pettifler, einhu se hot jufcht en eeziges herubungebrocht un fell war en Ganser. Des hot den Peter gefreit un er hot große Plän im Kopp gehat, wie er nau wott sei Gansfied impruße un nei Blut beidringe. Awer er hot sei Rechnung ohne den zahmgeborene wilde Ganser gemacht. Sells is en regler Loff worre, wils un unerbesserlich in alle seine Wege. Er war noch net halbgewadte, do hot er schon gefiekt, un wie er emol en Johr alt war, do hot er die Kinner mit die Fligel a'fammegeschlage un ihne Stide aus die Wade gerisse. Des Luder war in d'r ganze Hochschafft en rechte Rufsens worre. Zieficht hen die Zeit dem Peter gefalt, daß wann er selder Ganser net wegschafft, er Drumel kriegt bät. So hot er ihn dann abgemurft un er war froh, wie er ihn los war. Er glöbt felwert, daß aus so ere Mizerie net viel rausumme war un er wott sich net meh mit so Experimente abgeve.

Zuficht abaut so gut hot d'r Dscharteie ausgemacht, wie er Mongolische Kafsahnde hot zefse welle. Die Wite fen so wild gebiene, daß mer net uf dreihig Harbs nächst zum Käffig hot tumme berfe, funficht hätte sie sich d'r Kopp am Gitter eingeernt. Un die Junge fen verreckt, ob se gree Monat alt ware. Gesh mer wog mit alle wilde Raffe. Sells fen net zu verbeffere un verbeffere ah selweri niz. Gleich un Gleich, fegt mer als, Was ime Gschepf gebore is, bleibt ah.

D'r Hans Jörg.

Editor's Advance Sheet.

The October Engineering Magazine opens with an article by John Geo. Leigh, entitled "Columbia and Panama Canal," which in its text and its many new and most interesting illustrations gives a very valuable and heretofore unobtainable idea of the country as a whole. The State of Panama has been a good deal written up, but the beauty, the richness, and the wholly undeveloped possibilities of the other Departments have not before been so effectively presented. The matter is very important in view of the present condition of the canal negotiations.

The number throughout is remarkable for the number and character of the illustrated articles it carries. Among these is Mr. Chas. V. Allen's account of the Kimberley diamond mines—a remarkable instance of modernized working; M. Emile Guarnini's review of progress in running trolley vehicles on common roads; Prof. R. A. S. Redmayne's study of coal mining in Great Britain, with its striking side lights on the uplifting effects of the introduction of machinery; Prof. A. Rateau's description of the most recent improvements in the steam turbine; and Mr. Lake's article on the modern advances in the design of high powered locomotive boilers. Another contribution of especial timeliness is Mr. Ebert P. Watson's "Issues Between Labor and Capital," showing how much of the existing trouble comes from false position taken by the trades unions and false tactics on the part of employers. He writes as a man of practical experience in both positions—as employer and workman—with no panacea, but only some sound suggestions to offer.

The Review and Index of the Engineering Press complete a number well worthy of special announcement as the first of the twenty-sixth volume of the Magazine.—The Engineering Magazine, New York.

In late years men have made fortunes out of the tailings of gold mines. The mills in which the ore formerly was crushed and the crude processes then in use allowed a large percentage of the precious metal to escape, and that a loss amounted in some cases to a fortune. The stomach is just like a stamp mill in this respect. That when it is not in perfect order it allows the escape and waste of much of the precious nutriment contained in the food. That loss when continuous in the loss of man's greatest fortune—health. Science offers a remedy for this condition in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It corrects the "weakness" of the stomach, prevents waste and loss of nutriment, and puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition into a condition of health which enables them to save and assimilate all the nutriment contained in the food which is eaten. In all cases of constipation the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will speedily and permanently cure the disease.

Bridge wrecked by a Cow.

Great excitement prevailed at Westport Tuesday morning shortly before 12 o'clock, when the large iron bridge of the Clinton Coal company was knocked from the abutments and thrown into Kettle creek, says the Renovo News. The trouble was caused by a cow, which was standing on the tracks at the east of the bridge. A train of empty cars was being backed across to the mines and just as the first car neared the bridge the cow stepped directly in front of it and was struck. The blow knocked the animal down and also derailed the car, which crashed into the end of the bridge and completely demolished it. One car went down with the bridge, taking Brakeman Frank Bearfield also, who received dangerous injuries. The bridge is a total wreck.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How to Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. If it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. "If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper."

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root and the address on every bottle Binghamton, N. Y.

Effect of Colors.

It is generally supposed that each different color has its peculiar influence upon the body through the mind. There are some colors that are disagreeable to some people, while to others they are pleasing. But fortunately people are not subjected to the same color so continuously as to make its effect anything more than a passing feeling of antipathy or repulsion.

An article recently came under our notice in which the writer had seemingly made a study of the effect of colors upon the brain. He states that purple is the most dangerous color, having a fatal effect upon the mind. That if a person were confined for a month in a room with purple walls, with no color but purple around him, by the end of the month he would be a madman.

Scarlet, this writer claims, is as bad, but has a different effect. It produces a madness that drives a person to kill his friends, especially his nearest relatives. Scarlet has something of this effect upon animals. It will drive a bull or a tiger to desperation, causing them to fight till death.

Blue has a drug-like effect on the brain. It stimulates the mind and excites the imagination, but if you get too much of it its effect is terrible.

Green is the king of colors. It is soothing in its effect, preserves and strengthens the eyesight, and no amount of it can do any harm. The sky, which appears to be blue, is really white, tinged with green, and it is only the distance and clearness that makes it appear blue. Green is so soothing that it helps the system to fight disease, and, therefore, all sick rooms and hospital wards should have everything possible about them colored green. Sage green is the most soothing tint of all.

Yellow is one of the healthiest and cheeriest colors there is, and will make a dark room bright where even green would be cold and depressing. But solitary confinement within a yellow cell for a month or six weeks would hopelessly weaken the system and produce chronic hysteria.

Good Words for Col. Chambers.

"Our State Army and Navy," a paper devoted to the interests of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, in an issue of recent date, gives a fine full page portrait of Colonel Edward R. Chambers. In speaking of the distinguished young Centre countian, the "Army and Navy" says:

Prominent among the members of Governor Pennypacker's staff is Colonel Edward R. Chambers, of Bellefonte. He is a typical representative of the American self-made man, being resourceful, energetic and aggressive. In 1888 Colonel Chambers was appointed Deputy Revenue Collector in his district under President Harrison, performing the functions of that office with great credit and ability, and in 1899 his long and faithful service was substantially recognized by Governor Stone, who appointed him to the responsible position as Attorney for the Auditor General of Pennsylvania.

After graduating from the State College, he entered the law office of Alexander & Bower as a student and was subsequently admitted to the bar, and today is one of the recognized leaders in the profession. Colonel Chambers comes from a military family. His grandfather, Elijah Chambers, was a soldier under General George Washington at Valley Forge, and was in the battle of Monmouth. He was fifty years older than his son, who in turn was fifty years older than the subject of this sketch.

Colonel Chambers, although but recently appointed as an aide-de-camp on the staff of the commander-in-chief, is a promising executive and departmental officer.

A DOZEN TIMES A NIGHT.

Mr. Owen Dunn, of Benton Ferry, W. Va., writes: "I have had kidney and bladder trouble for years, and it became so bad that I was obliged to get up at least a dozen times a night. I never received any permanent benefit from any medicine until I tried Foley's Kidney Cure. After using two bottles, I am cured."

IN GRIP OF BIG FLOOD!

Patterson was Cut off From the World for Hours.

THE ISOLATION WAS COMPLETE

No Trains Reached the Town During the Day—One Death Resulted from the Flood—Passaic Steel Works Flooded.

GREAT STORM IN NEW YORK

PATTERSON, N. J., Oct. 10.—Cut entirely off from the world for hours Friday afternoon, Patterson saw the Passaic river rise until it lacked just nine inches of the height it attained in the great flood of February last.

The isolation of the city was practically complete, telephone and telegraph communication being suspended for four hours. Not a train arrived here Friday over any road, except the Lackawanna, which managed to get a local through last night. The Erie is out of commission and trains are stalled on both sides of the city. On a few lines a car or two runs back and forth between flooded points.

Of the thousands of commuters who left here Friday morning only a few succeeded in getting back Friday afternoon. One death has resulted from the flood. Mary Hanley, 14 years of age, was swept to death when the bridge over Olden creek was carried away.

Probably the greatest damage will result at the Passaic Steel works. The water poured into the fire rooms and all the fires were put out. Every furnace in the plant was running at the time and filled with molten metal. The putting out of the fires is causing the metal to solidify and unless the fires are going soon the steel will be hard and there will be nothing for it but to tear down the furnaces and rebuild.

Water poured into the Rogers Locomotive works compelling them to shut down. In the city the water stood ten feet deep in the lower streets near the river, which, for a time, early Friday morning rose at the rate of one foot an hour. When the rain ceased the flood began to subside. All the factories along the river shut down Friday morning. It is feared that the walls of many houses are dangerously undermined by the current. The abutments of the West Twenty-fifth street bridge were undermined and the whole structure collapsed.

At Little Falls, above this city, several bridges were swept away. A train on the New York branch of the Erie road was wrecked by a washout near Nailey. Two of the cars crashed against the abutments and many were more or less injured.

The loss in the city is impossible to estimate, but it will run close to a million dollars. Much will depend upon what condition the streets in the flooded districts are in.

Soundings made by the street department indicate that they are badly torn and washed out. The state of foundations of buildings in the flooded section is also unknown and will remain so until the water subsides.

An officer of the Passaic Steel works Friday night said that the loss was already fully $10,000, and might be $100,000, if the blasts were not going by morning, which seemed impossible Friday night.

New York, Oct. 10.—The most terrible downpour of rain this city has experienced in years has been raging for twenty-four hours. At 9 Friday evening it showed no signs of abating. The records of the local weather bureau show no greater precipitation for any one day. Beginning at 8 Friday morning, the day brought frequent showers.

With nightfall the rain came down heavily and continuously. It fell in sheets and a northwest wind sent it swirling through the streets and against houses, making a rattle like the sound of distant drums.

Up to 8 o'clock 6.18 inches of rain had fallen. This is a record, as the greatest precipitation heretofore has stood at 5.12 inches.

THE GRANGE RITUAL.

Its Beautiful Teaching Unappreciated by Most Patrons.

The American Grange Bulletin touches upon a very important matter in the following article. It says: As members of the grange we frequently boast of the teachings of our ritual. What is the best thing in it? Don't answer without thinking. Perhaps you hadn't thought. Possibly you know very little about the ritual—and you are an officer, a teacher in the grange! And if you, with your opportunities and responsibilities, must hesitate and confess to yourself that you know very little about the matter, how do you suppose your new members would be able to answer the question?

Here is a suggestion, not for this week or next, but for a suitable time this month or next, or some other month. Plan a ritual programme. Ask a dozen members to select the best sentence from the ritual and be prepared to repeat it and give reasons for thinking it the best. Ask three others to read the ritual for the purpose of being able to judge which of the dozen answers is best. The decision may be based on the selection alone, on the selection and the explanation, or on the explanation alone.

The important thing is to get your members interested in searching for the choice things in the grange ritual. Mere memorizing without regard to thought will amount to little, but the good things are worth committing, even if the lessons they should teach are not appreciated at the time. The getting by heart with the idea of understanding the meaning as well as the order of the words will do good, besides being an interesting exercise and a valuable discipline.

TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION.

Some Suggestions For the Worthy Lecturer's Programmes.

Sometimes it happens that lecturers of subordinate granges are at a loss to know what subject to suggest for discussion at grange meetings. We submit a few that will be found interesting and profitable.

Is the local telephone an advantage to the farmer?

What is the best for the average farmer, special or mixed farming? From what may the farmer receive the most education in his calling today? Have men or women exercised the greatest influence on civilization and happiness?

Which is the best for a young man—a college education or an eighty acre farm?

What is the cheapest and best way of building a road?

Is it right to exempt life insurance companies, saving banks and loan associations from taxation?

Are farmers receiving a reasonable return for the capital and labor invested in their farms?

Should country schoolhouses be used as centers for social neighborhood meetings?

How many pounds of butter should a good dairy cow make in a year and what should she be fed?

Should the government or state aid in defraying the cost of constructing highways built according to standard requirements?

Would the importation of farm laborers through the department of agriculture at Washington be desirable?

Farmers Should Join the Grange.

While the grange is making rapid strides in membership this year, there are still a great many farmers who are not members of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry. More than 30,000,000 people of the United States are engaged in agriculture. The moral, social, educational and financial status of so large a number of our people is a matter of interest to every good citizen. The primary purpose of the grange is to educate and elevate the American farmer. Every patriotic farmer should join the grange and help the good work along, and every other good citizen, as opportunity may offer, should speak a word of encouragement.

A Grange Offended by Women.

Union grange of Southington, Conn., since Jan. 1, when all the officers were filled by lady members, has been making fine progress. At the opening of the year sixteen were initiated, the rituals were taboed, and such degree work has never been seen in the grange. Two successful institutes were held early in the spring. "Josh Whitcomb" was well presented at the town hall and a neat sum returned to the treasury. These ladies have proved that the success of a grange is secured once it has a live corps of officers and a careful, tactful and resourceful lecturer.—American Agriculturist.

Yes, Turn 'Em Down!

The New York Farmer rises to remark that "the grangers should turn down the smiling, gushing, bowing, smirking, handshaking, shoulder slapping, rib punching, fence building, log rolling, round cornered, wire pulling, nomination asking and vote begging professional politicians who haunt the grange picnics in summer."

A Lofly Tower.

The crystal palace tower at the St. Louis fair will be 1,050 feet high.

Why Should We Work?

Work is activity in some phrase of our life. Life is manifested in activity, and inactivity would be stagnation, which would be fatal to life.

In the universe wherever there is life there is activity. This is true in the vegetable, the animal and the human worlds. This activity is a necessity that runs through all organic life. The life that is not crowned with ennobling work of some kind, either for one's own livelihood or for the good of others, is an empty life—an abnormal life.

Work is natural; idleness unnatural. Work builds up, and inactivity tears down. Idleness is a violation of our being. Hence it is immoral.

There are manifold reasons why we should work and no reason why we should not. Those who are not obliged to labor for their daily bread should always choose a work of some kind in obedience to the universal law that we see running all creation.

He who was of the opinion that "man who does not work should not eat," realized the demoralizing influence of a life spent in idleness.—American Queen.

A Tomato-Potato.

An anomaly in grafting, being a plant which is growing first class potatoes at the roots and bearing fully developed tomatoes at the stalk, was brought about by Professor Green of the Minnesota State School of Agriculture, when he cut off the young shoots of a potato vine, making a V-shaped slit in the top, into which he inserted a freshly clipped young tomato plant, bound the joint with straw and supported it by long rods. Nature did the rest.

The tomato drew sustenance from the earth through the roots of the potato and, in return furnished what was required in the way of the action of light and air upon its own leaves to its adopted roots.

The plant is now three months old. On pushing aside the earth several fairly developed potatoes are shown, each a trifle larger than a hen's egg. From the vines a half dozen tomatoes are hanging in different stages of maturity. Several have ripened and others promise to do so, as well.

The tomato vine loses identity at the place where the graft was made. There are no leaves at all suggestive of the potato. The vine is fully three feet high.

DIETING INVITES DISEASE.

To cure Dyspepsia or indigestion it is no longer necessary to live on milk and toast. Starvation produces such weakness that the whole system becomes an easy prey to disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that one craves to eat, and is a never failing cure for indigestion, Dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. Kodol digests what you eat—makes the stomach sweet. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

No danger of consumption if you use Foley's Honey and Tar to cure that stubborn cough.

C. M. Parrish.

As You Like It.

An ounce of experience is worth a pound of advice.

This is the land of the free—until you get mixed up in politics.

No, Maude, dear, the helm of the ship is not located in the steerage.

It is sometimes better to have loved and lost than to have loved and won her.

The more thermometers there are to look at the hotter the weather seems.

Many a reputation has sustained a severe fracture by a slip of the tongue.

The summer girl wonders why somebody doesn't invent a waterproof bathing suit.

It is possible for a man to be square and still be cornered.

It is easier to make a new promise than to mend a broken one.

Some people are attracted to auction sales out of more-bid curiosity.

An idle rumor gains currency, which is more than can be said of an idle man.

NEVER ASK ADVISE.

When you have a cough or cold don't ask what is good for it and get some medicine with little or no merit or perhaps dangerous. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar, the greatest throat and lung remedy, it cures coughs and colds quickly.

WAS A FAILURE.

The Sixty-Foot Flying Machine Built by Professor Samuel F. Langley.

AFTER YEARS OF MUCH STUDY

Had Been Devoted to the Invention, and an Official Statement Admits the Failure.

HAS HOPE OF ULTIMATE SUCCESS

Widewater, Va., October 8.—The sixty foot, steel built, flying machine, the climax of years of exhaustive study in the efforts of Professor Samuel F. Langley, secretary of the Smithsonian Institute, to solve the problem of mechanical flight in mid-air, was launched yesterday and the experiment, carefully planned and delayed for months proved a complete failure. The immense airship sped rapidly along its seventy-foot track, was carried by its own momentum for 100 yards, and then fell gradually into the Potomac river, whence it emerged a total wreck. Professor Charles M. Hanley, who has been Professor Langley's chief assistant in the work, preliminary to the attempted flight made the ascent in the aerodrome and escaped with a ducking. At no time was there any semblance of flight, the initial momentum, the lightness of the machine and the sustaining surface of the wings furnishing the conditions which account for the hundred yard transit of the air bird from its sixty foot elevation to the water. An official statement made after the test admitted that the experiment was unsuccessful, but asserted confidence in the ultimate success of the invention.

Reading, Pa., October 8.—The thirty-third annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church convened here yesterday, to remain in session until Friday noon. Over 200 delegates are in attendance. They come from all over the eastern section of the state, but are particularly numerous from Philadelphia.

In the absence of the wife of Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, Mrs. Henry Wheeler, of Philadelphia, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Amos Wakelin, of Philadelphia, recording secretary, reported flattering results of the society's work. Mrs. T. H. Wilson, Philadelphia, branch secretary, reported total receipts of $66,660.21, with disbursements of $47,191.14. The following made gratifying reports: Home work, Mrs. S. P. Darlington; report of editor of Quarterly, Mrs. E. A. Fowler; report of secretary of literature, Miss Nina P. Lincoln; report of committee literary supplies, Miss E. T. Williams.

NEIGHBORS ON THE OUTS.

Making it Hot for Each Other the Vicinity of Polcat Hollow.

Beech Creek, Oct. 8.—Considerable excitement exists on Marsh creek these days in Polcat hollow, near Romola. Neighbors are making it hot for each other. Last week a man was arrested by Warden Rightmire of Bellefonte on the charge of shooting a squirrel. It is supposed that the information was made by the man who was the offender, both neighbors and old friends. The hearing was held in Bellefonte and a fine of $10 imposed, which aggregated $17 with the costs. The man who shot the squirrel killed it for a friend who is recovering from an operation for appendicitis. He should recover with such high priced diet.

Another well known resident is reported to have been arrested on the charge of selling liquor without a license. This has caused something of a sensation. Another report is to the effect that two fine hogs owned by a farmer were found with their throats cut one morning. Other arrests are threatened. All of which has created stirring times along Marsh creek.—Lock Haven Express.

THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST.

The publisher of the Bellefonte Republican has determined to give away absolutely free, to some deserving church, chapel or Sunday school in Centre county a handsome Chapel organ. With this end in view he entered into a contract with M. C. Gephardt, the well known piano dealer of Bellefonte for the purchase of a "Burdett" Chapel organ, manufactured by the well known piano firm, the Hobart N. Cable Company of Chicago, Ill. The organ will be on exhibition in the store room of M. C. Gephardt on South Allegheny street.

The Bellefonte Republican has decided to ask its patrons to select by vote as to what church, chapel or Sunday school shall have the organ. The method of voting is as follows:

Newspaper coupons—A blank ballot or coupon will be printed in each copy of the Bellefonte Republican and the name can be filled in same for whatever Church, Sunday school or religious organization you may want to vote. These votes should be sent into this office at once, as they will not be counted after they are six weeks old, and the date any number of each will appear on them.

Premium Coupons—Any persons who sends in a New Cash subscriber to this paper can get a Premium Coupon entitling him to four votes for each month paid or 50 for a full year. No subscriptions will be received for less than six months. Our regular subscribers by paying their subscription in advance will receive a Premium Coupon that will entitle them to 2 votes for each month paid 25 votes for a full year.

Slid Down a Stack of Fire.

Enveloped in a sheet of flame, John Tomlin, a boilermaker, slid down a rope from the top of a 45-foot stack at the Brandywine steel plant Saturday morning, and is now in the hospital at Coatesville in a precarious condition.

Tomlin was seated on a scaffold painting the stack when a volume of fire shot out of the funnel and ignited a gasoline ingredient in his paint bucket.

The flame quickly caught his clothing, and burned most of it from his body as he slid down the rope.

So Say We, All Of Us.

The ordinance passed by Clearfield Council, fixing a fee for those who come into Clearfield to peddle and fakir is all right and it might have gone farther and thrown out a little protection to the printer, who finds cheap opposition in solicitors from every place, card men, directory men and all the swindlers of which the mind can conceive.—Raftsmen's Journal.
